Jeju Do Korean Restaurant has been named after Jeju, South Korea's largest island, known for its breathtaking volcanic landscapes and vibrant culinary traditions. Situated at the bustling yet charming place of Kathmandu; Durbar Marg, this restaurant pays high regards to its allure and offers a delightful dining experience.

At the core of Jeju Do lies Halla Mountain (한라산), the highest peak in South Korea. Approximately 2 million years ago, this majestic mountain erupted, leaving behind a trail of lava that eventually formed the iconic Jeju Do island. Inspired by this volcanic phenomenon, the menu features an exquisite dish known as Volcano Fried Rice.

This culinary masterpiece is a tantalizing blend of flavors, with the cheesy rice symbolizing the grandeur of Halla Mountain. The egg sauce, resembling erupting lava, generously envelops the dish, creating a creamy mozzarella cheese cascade that delights the palate and transports diners to the enchanting volcanic landscapes of Jeju.
